"The special music retailer is and remains the gateway for the consumer and is therefore indispensable. The skills and passion with which specialist music retailers carry out their work and their contribution to an active music cultural landscape in Europe cannot be stressed enough. This vital commitment to the musical instrument branch is what we are honouring with EMIDA," says Daniel Knöll, managing director of the industry association SOMM.

From 11 February, European top specialist music retailers can enter for the three categories via the website www.emida-awards.eu. Applications close on 11 March.

Category 1 | Special commitment to music mediation
Category 2 | Best unique selling proposition
Category 3 | Best store concept
Special prize - Lifetime Achievement (can be awarded)

To make a nomination, send an online submission via the official website, www.emida-awards.eu, a short application text (maximum 10 lines) explaining why they should be nominated for an award in one of the three categories and why they are worthy of the award, a reference letter from a manufacturer or distributor, as well as a review or press article which supports and justifies the nomination in one of the three categories. Every submission can be entered into a number of different categories if there is sufficient reason. For nomination, the logo (figurative word mark) of the company is required in jpeg format and a copy of the trade register extract. It is not possible to apply for the Lifetime Achievement award. It will be selected by a jury.

The regulations for nominations are available on the website in English, German, French, Spanish and Italian.
